EST 1870

250 WOODSTOCK RIMU ROAD, HOKITIKA

WWW.WOODSTOCKHOTEL.CO.NZ

A dozen pubs have come and gone since Woodstock sprang to life in May 1865 but only one has survived the test of time - The Royal Mail Hotel.

Londoner Harry Gaylor built these walls around 1870 on Clements Road. When the road was put through to Ross in 1878 he had his pub bodily shifted 200 yards up the hill to this site. The building (originally just the bar area) was jacked up and then rolled on empty beer barrels pulled by horses to where it stands today.

Gaylor's Hotel was now on the main road and a stopping place for the mail coaches to Ross so a new name seemed more appropriate - The Royal Mail Hotel.

The Royal Mail Hotel has played many roles in the life of Woodstock, not only as a public house but also as a community meeting place, post office and even as a morgue.

In 2006 Colin & Leanne Cutler bought the Legendary hotel & introduced quality, fresh, pub style meals to 'The Woody' as it has become known. As the craft beer scene grew in New Zealand, Colin, (after a disagreement with one of the main breweries), started brewing his own beer in the garage behind the pub and in 2017 created The Woodstock Brewing Co. a micro brewery in which he brews a range of natural beers. Today 'The Woody' offers evening dining and craft beer & cider, in a warm and welcoming Country Pub style. There is regularly live music playing and it has hosted some of New Zealand's top performers.

Every Sunday, the local music club meets at the Royal Mail Hotel for a jam session. This jam is open to all in the bar so any individual passing through is most welcome to get up and do a few numbers.
